

What you do:

Sit in a circle. Give one person the full cup of rice and give everybody else in the group an empty cup. Challenge the group to share the rice equally between each person as the cup with the rice is passed from one person to the next around the circle. This will mean that the first person will have to give away almost all of their rice at the beginning and the amount shared will reduce as the remaining amount of rice in the cup goes down. The aim is for each person to have the same quantity of rice in their cup at the end. This might be an activity that you can do a number of times, chatting about

